

Everyone deserves a safe place to sleep at night.

We provide shelter by connecting people to resources, mediating between landlords and tenants, and housing women and their children in our emergency shelter program, Maud's House. In the winter season, our cold weather shelters in East County provide unsheltered neighbors with a safe place to sleep when temperatures are dangerously low.

Resources

We provide referrals for resources and connections to housing and shelter assistance through our North Sound 211 program. Simply dial 2-1-1 on your phone to start the process, and an Information & Referral Specialist will help you access whatever it is you need.

Mediation

We offer many types of services through our Dispute Resolution Center, including landlord-tenant mediation. We help people stay in their homes by arranging repayment plans and more.

To get find out more information or get started, please call (425) 339-1335, option 4 or email us at ltinfo@voaww.org.

Transitional Shelter

Maud's House, our transitional shelter for women and their children, includes education and programs that help our clients develop skills needed to stabilize their lives and succeed once they depart. Services include GED/High School Diploma achievement, employment readiness, one-on-one counseling, credit resolution services, financial management, nutrition services, parenting classes, and more.

If you are interested in living at Maud's House, you can start by contacting the Program Manager at (360) 386-9066. Please call 2-1-1 for additional resources.
